WHAT WE LEARNED AT HARBY. And pray, Mr. Sampson, are these three hours entirely syent in construing and translating? Doubtless, no--we have also colloquial intercourse to sweeten study--neque semper arcum tendit Apollo. Got Mankeetng. I Am rather alarmed at the heavy title placed at the head of this chapter; but, after all, as we did go to school to learn, however indifferently we may have succeeded, and as boys still continue to go to school for that purpose, some slight notice of Harby lessons may not be considered out of place. I do not intend, however, to place upon record all the works which I studied at Harby, or to relate how many hundreds of Latin and Greek verses I wrote there--much less what they were about; for I am very often posed by my sisters and others when, reading a...
