Excerpt: .are many of them--are followed by suppers, subscribed for by the players, or provided by the masters, which are the scenes of much amusement and conviviality. The great annual meeting of cricketers at Rugby is at the time of the old Rugbeian match. It is played between an eleven of old Rugbeians and the School eleven, and at the same time several other games are played between school cricketers, past and present. The School eleven also play many foreign matches, for instance, matches between college teams from the Universities, the Rugby club, the Free Foresters, the Butterflies, the M. C. C, c.; but the match which is of most importance is the annual match between Rugby and Marlborough, played at Lord s on the first days of the summer holidays. It has for years been an annual match, and down to 1890 it has...
